{2.10.26}

John M. Doris is Peter L. Dyson Professor of Ethics in Organizations and Life at Cornell University. He works at the intersection of cognitive science, moral psychology, and philosophical ethics, and has authored and co-authored papers for such venues as Noûs, Philosophical Studies, Philosophy and Phenomenological Research, Behavioral and Brain Sciences, Nature: Scientific Reports, and Journal of Personality and Social Psychology. He authored Lack of Character: Personality and Moral Behavior (Cambridge, 2002), Talking to Our Selves: Reflection, Ignorance, and Agency (Oxford, 2015), and Character Trouble: Undisciplined Essays on Moral Agency and Personality (Oxford, 2022). With Edouard Machery, he authored Reasonable Doubt: Rethinking Trust in Science (Princeton, 2027). With the Moral Psychology Research Group, he wrote and edited The Moral Psychology Handbook (Oxford, 2010) and, with Manuel Vargas, edited The Oxford Handbook of Moral Psychology (2022). Doris has been awarded funding from Michigan's Institute for the Humanities; the American Council of Learned Societies; the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences; Templeton World Charities Foundation; Princeton's University Center for Human Values (twice); the National Humanities Center (twice); the National Endowment for the Humanities (4 times). For 2025-2026, he is president of the Society for Philosophy and Psychology; he is also a winner of the Society's Stanton Prize for excellence in interdisciplinary research, and the American Philosophical Association's Gittler Award for outstanding scholarship in the philosophy of social science. Doris' pedagogy has been recognized with awards at both the undergraduate and graduate level.
